What do we show on this month's cover? The chains of St Peter. in Rome. Who was St Peter? Remembered as the apostle who famously denied Christ three times, he subsequently became "the rock on which the church was built". As a former fisherman he is patron saint of net makers, fishermen and shipbuilders and because he holds the keys of heaven, he is also the patron saint of locksmiths. His main feast day is on 29 June. However, my first introduction to "St Peter in Chains", was a few years ago, in the shrine of our Lady of Walsingham, in Norfolk. A new accommodation block had named each room after a saint, and I was fascinated by this one. As 1st Aug is the liturgical feast day of the Liberation of St Peter, when better than now, to write about why he was imprisoned and how he was set free? Peter was first imprisoned in the Mamertine Prison in Rome, known as the prison of the apostles Peter and Paul. It was originally built in the 7th century BC, by Ancus Marcus, and prisoners were lowered through an opening into an even deeper dungeon. There is a church built on this lower site, known as S Pietro in Carcere. The cross on the altar is upside down, since according to tradition, St Peter was crucified in this way – he considered himself unworthy to die in the same way as his beloved Master. The spring at the bottom of the pit was used by St Peter to conduct baptisms. Peter's imprisonment is well documented, as he was a Roman citizen and his decree of incarceration was signed by the emperor Nero. Peter's second imprisonment was in Jerusalem, when he was shackled, by the orders of Herod Agrippa, in an iron chain for preaching about Jesus. The night before his trial, St. Peter was said to have been released from the chain by an angel and led out of the prison. Legend says that when the Empress Eudoxia (wife of Valentinian III) gave the second chain to Pope Leo I, he held it next to the chains from Peter's first imprisonment in the Mamertine Prison in Rome and the two chains miraculously fused together. The empress had received the chains from her mother, who had been gifted them by the bishop of Jerusalem. What a history! Today, this mix of chains is housed in a reliquary under the main altar in the San Pietro in Vincoli (Saint Peter in Chains) basilica in Rome, which is near the Colosseum, and which also houses Michelangelo's statue of Moses. It is also known as the Basilica Eudoxiana, after the benefactress. There is a church in the UK which is thought to have been dedicated to St Peter ad Vincula, on his feast day in 1110, by Henry I, but it has no chain relics. It does however have its own sad history, as it was the parish church of the Tower of London, and is the burial place of some famous people executed within, such as Queen Anne Boleyn, Queen Catherine Howard, Lady Jane Gray, Thomas Cromwell and Sir Thomas More. Their corpses would have been carried by gaolers with no mourners allowed to follow. The church is a 'Royal Peculiar', in that it is currently under the jurisdiction of the monarch, rather than the diocesan Bishop.

Our pastoral care visiting team has grown in size, to allow us to reach out to even more people, as soon as we are allowed. We know that in some areas loneliness can be a huge problem, especially if your family live away, or if you are new to the town or village.

Please don't feel that you are on your own—we are just a phone call away! Some of you might like us to call for a friendly chat, others might like to receive Holy Communion, either in your own home, in hospital or in a care or nursing home. Others prefer a telephone call, just to be reminded that we are thinking of you. Remember that if we don't know that you need us, we sadly cannot help you, so someone please get in touch on your behalf!

If you have lost loved ones, and you wish to remember them in the Anniversaries of Death section, please get in touch as soon as possible. The fact that one of our clergy performed the ceremony, unfortunately does not mean that the name automatically transfers into the Anniversaries section. You need to request it please.

It is very comforting to many people, to read and hear the name remembered.

Annual charity shop. Although it was a really hot week, with few people on the high street, Betty and her team succeeded in raising £900 in five days. Thanks to all who donated, all who sold and all our customers. Chris Medley won the raffle, which was a food hamper.

As so many of us are back in church, we will make sure that copies of this and future PCCs are available for you to pick up in each of our four buildings. Some of you have already chosen to receive on line. We are delighted to keep home delivering to those who still need us to do so. Thank you.

We all know the meaning of the term "hung over" – but what was the origin?

In large cities, the homeless and destitute now may choose cardboard boxes in which to spend the night. In Victorian England, if you lived on the streets, and had managed to make a little money during the day, you could spend the night in one of three ways, depending on the amount earned! One old penny would buy you a "sit up". This meant that you could sit bolt upright in an unheated hall, so you were dry but cold, and there were people employed to prod at regular intervals, to make sure there was no sleeping in a sit up! If you had two old pennies left over from a night of drinking, this would allow you to sleep "hung over" on a rope from the waist, stretched from wall to wall, to fit in as many bodies as possible. It was not comfortable, rather like leaning over a fence, and to ensure you didn't over sleep, the rope was cut at 5 or 6 am each morning. Many could not be woken, having frozen to death overnight! A more comfortable option was the Salvation Army "coffins," costing four or five old pence per night. These were narrow wooden boxes laid out in rows on the floor, and pieces of oilcloth or leather blankets were supplied as bed linen. The downside to this were the bugs, which could not escape from the box. These prices were charged to those lucky to be able to earn nine old pence per day! The need for Britain's first homeless shelters was great, and towards the end of the nineteenth century they were able to be supplied free!
